Insight "Materiality analysis 2022"

Following the entry into force of the new GRI standards (1 January 2023), Relatech has adapted its reporting system with particular effect on the materiality analysis: if previously the analysis was based on the study of the relevance of each theme (e.g. "Ethics and integrity in the conduct of business", "Combating climate change and emissions management", etc.) from the point of view of the company itself and its stakeholders, the new standards are now oriented towards impact materiality, focusing on the assessment of non-financial impacts that, in the case of Relatech, are not financial.) from the point of view of the company itself and its stakeholders, the new regulation moves towards impact materiality, focusing on the assessment of the non-financial impacts that Relatech and its group companies and value chain generate or could generate on the economic, environmental and social spheres. For the stakeholders of the Relatech ecosystem, the materiality issues whose impacts are very likely to be significant are "Respect for human rights and protection of workers", "personnel training" within the social responsibility category; instead, within the "product responsibility" category, the issues of "technological innovation and digitalisation" are relevant, as well as the Group's offer in terms of "cybersecurity".
